Student Experiences and Perceptions

Students who are actively involved in their own learning and development are more likely to be successful in college. Colleges and universities offer students a wide variety of opportunities both inside and outside the classroom to become engaged with new ideas, people, and experiences. Institutions measure the effectiveness of these opportunities in a variety of ways to better understand what types of activities and programs students find the most helpful.

In addition, institutions participating in the VSA program measure student involvement on campus using one of four national surveys. Results from the one survey are reported for a common set of questions selected as part of VSA. Following are the selected results from the National Survey of Student Engagement (NSSE). The questions have been grouped together in categories that are known to contribute to student learning and development. The results reported below are based on the responses of seniors who participated in the survey.

CLICK HERE for information on the NSSE survey.

Group Learning Experiences

- 92% percent of seniors worked with classmates on assignments outside of class.
- 50% of seniors tutored or taught other students
- 11% of seniors spent at least 6 hours per week participating in co-curricular activities such as student organizations and intramural sports

Active Learning Experiences

- 79% of seniors spent at least 6 hours per week preparing for class

Student Learning Outcomes

All colleges and universities use multiple approaches to measure student learning. Many of these are specific to particular disciplines, many are coordinated with accrediting agencies, and many are based on outcomes after students have graduated. In addition, those institutions participating in the VSA measure increases in critical thinking, analytic reasoning, and written communication using one of three tests.

Student Learning Assessment at CSULA

Assessment of student learning is crucial in each college and program. The purpose of assessing student outcomes is to improve teaching and learning at the individual, course, program and institutional level.

The CSULA Assessment website is located at www.calstatela.edu/academic/aa/assessment/. This website contains the campus assessment policy, the campus syllabus policy, SLOs by college and program, a list of assessment coordinators, assessment reports, and assessment tools and resources.

Pilot Project to Measure Core Learning Outcomes

As a pilot project, VSA participants measure critical thinking, analytic reasoning, and written communication using one of three tests. Following are the results from the Collegiate Learning Assessment (CLA). Such general skills are applicable and useful for both career and personal success and are important outcomes of college regardless of a student’s major. The CLA measures critical thinking, analytic reasoning and written communication using two different tasks -- a performance task and an analytic writing task.

CLICK HERE for a description of the CLA test.

Learning Gains between Freshman Year and Senior Year

PerformanceTask

The increase in learning on the performance task is above what would be expected at an institution with students of similar academic abilities

Analytic Writing Task

The increase in learning on the writing task is what would be expected at an institution with students of similar academic abilities.
